

The GLW Range of TFF Turkey Feeds provides excellent all round diets for slower growing birds, particularly those destined for the seasonal Christmas market.

Improved Traditional Farm Fresh Turkey Diets for 2010 Season

Following the great success of the 2009 GLW TFF range, we have maintained the same high specifications for the 2010 season and enhanced our formulations by the addition of 15% Naked Oats across the entire range. GLW offer a complete range of diets from a top quality starter crumb to a low protein late finisher pellet. All diets are available for bulk or bag delivery.

Benefits of Feeding Naked Oats

Naked oats have been demonstrated to be nutritionally and economically viable as a wheat alternative within poultry rations, having been extensively tested by a commercial UK turkey producer and also by British United Turkeys ( now Aviagen Turkeys Ltd.) Naked Oats (NO) are so called because they have a non-lignified husk that becomes detached during harvesting. As a result of this they have an increased metabolisable energy and protein content compared to standard and husked oats, partly because the husk of the standard oat is almost indigestible for monogastrics. NO are higher in essential amino acids than both wheat and barley, and have a better amino acid profile than wheat, i.e. Closer to the bird's requirements. NO are also much higher in oil than wheat and barley and are high in natural anti-oxidants.

Summary

- Better Protein quality (amino acid profile) than wheat
- Higher energy specification
- High in natural antioxidants
- Thought to have antifungal and anti bacteriological properties
- Improved general health and finish
- Improved feathering
- Reduces likelihood of feather picking
- Improved product quality
